

Jacqueline

September, 1993

Jackie is a young woman with a lot of personal interests. Like many teenage girls, she enjoys shopping, doing her makeup and hair and spending time with her friends.

She has an interest in pursuing a career in cosmetology at this time. She also enjoys writing, especially poetry, using it to express her feelings. She also has interest in sketching/drawing and likes to design hairstyles this way. Jackie considers herself a Christian and is open to attending church.

She is a good student when she applies herself, but has struggled in the past year due to poor attendance. Jackie will need ongoing support as she addresses her history with alcohol and drug abuse. She also attends therapy to help her deal with her history and the losses and transitions in her life. Jackie can be very sensitive and caring. She has strong connections to her birth family, which makes the idea of adoption difficult for her at this time.

Jackie would do well with a family that is able to give her the limits she needs while respecting her individuality and encouraging her to reach her full potential. A family will need to be open to supporting her in maintaining her sobriety and in ongoing therapy. She will most likely succeed in a family where any siblings are younger, but she will also require attention and supervision.

If you are the family that can love and support Jacqueline as she grows into a healthy adult, then I look forward to hearing from you.
