

Krystal Birthdate: December, 1990

Krystal is a young woman who is looking for a forever family. Could you be the family she is looking for?

Krystal is very bright and a go-getter! She does well in school. Like most teens, she is involved in activities, and things can get away from her. Therefore, parental involvement will be her key to continued academic success.

In her free time, Krystal loves listening to music and talking on the phone. She is shy when you first meet her; however, she will warm up to you once she has had the opportunity to get to know you.

Krystal has been diagnosed with both mental health and behavioral challenges. Krystal has made significant progress with her treatment goals. Krystal's transition from residential treatment to a foster family setting has proven to be successful. Krystal continues to address her issues through community services. Krystal will need your support in maintaining healthy personal boundaries, which has caused problems for her in the past.

Those working closely with Krystal believe the best family for her is one that has a lot of time to devote to her and is willing to advocate for her in all areas. Her new family must be willing to work with professionals in order to learn more about Krystal and how to care for her specific needs.

Krystal does have a younger brother and will want to have contact with him from time to time. Therefore, it will be important that her new family allow this. Although Krystal is able to interact with other children, she would flourish in a family where she is the only child.

If you are the family who can provide her with love, support and nurturing she needs to grow up into a healthy and happy adult, then I look forward to hearing from you.

Because no one should grow up alone. For more information, contact:
