

Jessica
Birthdate:
February, 2007

Jessica is a pleasant child who is usually laughing or smiling. Jessica communicates well through non-verbal cues such as making eye contact and mimicking behavior. She also smiles and moves in excitement when interacting with people. Jessica loves her exercise, lying on the floor, kicking her legs and arms and making noises. She has a laid back, sweet personality and is easily contented. Jessica interacts well with people by making eye contact, smiling, and moving in excitement.

Developmentally, Jessica has global delays. She is monitored by various medical specialists. Jessica receives supportive services such as occupational therapy, physical therapy and in-home nursing several times a week. Additionally, planning is in process for Jessica to attend a special needs preschool. The consistency, structure, and nurturing Jessica receives in her current placement has continued to help her make significant progress with her development.

The best family for Jessica is a two parent home that is nurturing, structured, and has a strong support system. She could do well with other children in the home, preferably older children due to the time and attention required to meet her significant special and medical needs and advocate for her in all areas. Jessica's family must be open to multiple appointments with medical specialists and community service providers and follow through with recommendations to meet her needs.

If you are the family that can love and support Jessica as she grows and develops, then I look forward to hearing from you.
